

I understand the design process and am able to recognise how it relates to different technologies.

I can adapt my skills using a variety of materials and ingredients to make an end product.

I create my own ideas using a range of different techniques, which I then test so I can develop them further.

I can critically analyse my work and the work of others.